Introduction

Being Psychic has got nothing to do with being adult or matured. A large number of children can also possess psychic abilities. The difference between the adults and the children lies in their mode of expressing the idea of Psychic power. As the little ones find it difficult to convey their message and emotion about their queer and mystic psychic power of communicating with spirits and otherworldly entities. In some cases they can see, talk and even walk with them under the influence.

However, a Psychic child is just like any other normal kids and alike them a psychic child too faces all the challenges and struggles of life as they come of age. Nevertheless, their sensitivity is deeper and more subtle than the normal kids'.

Parenting A Psychic Child

As human beings we all possess some innate Psychic potential in varying strength and degrees. And when this power is found at a higher extent than usual in a child, he/she can be labeled as a Psychic Child, who is born with much sensitivity towards metaphysical or spiritual existences.

They are the recipient of constant affection, gentle care, loving and compassionate parental care. The following thoughts have to be kept in mind while bringing up such a special child.

Always Be Alert, Aware & Observant:

Parents, especially mothers should show wisdom in keeping a strict track without apparent restriction on all the upcoming changes in the child, his behaviors and habits, his emotional expressions and friends. One should notice and recognize the child's dreams and thoughts, activities, unusual experiences or any kind of transformation. Regular analytical reviews of the same can be very helpful in determining the child's normal and healthy upbringing. Moreover, these observations will help the parents to have insight of their child's mental and psychic state and their symbolic languages.

Acquire Knowledge & Be Wise :

It is a must for the parents of the psychic child to be knowledgeable and wise having depth of awareness and a broadminded insight on all things natural and supernatural.

Once they find out about their child's psychic gifts, they should gather in depth information and knowledge about the psychic phenomena, a psychic's behavior, their philosophy and medium of communication and how they deal with this special power.

They might also learn and study about the spiritual and transcendental entities popularly known as spirits, angels, specters and poltergeists etc. It might be time consuming but will be for your little one's betterment and proper guidance. A child's query about their Psychic powers should be answered with full honesty and straight forwardness.

Active Listening Is Necessary:

Being an active and sensible listener always helps to make a parent feel closer to his/her psychic child. Don't ever neglect or overlook your child when he/she comes to share any unusual or strange experience with you.

After listening to your child's experience of any particular incident or sensation, ask him/her proper questions that will enable him/her to delve deeper into the significance or meaning of the matter and will also help him remember any happening that has gone unnoticed by the child.

Never Ask To Perform:

A parent should never take an undue advantage of the psychic child's abilities or should never take it for granted by asking the child to predict things or answer their queries about unseen future or past.

Rather the parents should teach the psychic child about how to respect and nurture their potential and talents for good and humanity's betterment. It is the duty of the parents to teach and train their psychic child about their special powers and gifts so that they should never misuse the same.

Teach Them To Be Natural & Well Balanced :

It is one of the most important responsibilities of the parents to teach these special children to live and follow a natural and well balanced life just like any other normal kid. This includes healthy food intake, proper sleep and rest, playful hours and normal daily activities that will help the child to grow and develop normally. At times the psychic children should be taught and instilled the wisdom of communicating with trees, animals and stones in the garden to create spiritual connection with the elemental powers and abilities of nature and its various spiritual aspects.

Afterwords:

While some parents express their care, understanding, loving attitudes and compassion to their psychic child and deal with their abilities with wisdom and concern, others might ask and teach their children to ignore and overlook these inert and innate psychic gifts. This attitude makes a negative impact and somehow can make the psychic child feel aloof and odd among other normal children.

As a result when they grow up into matured human adults they lack the sensibility to deal with their psychic talents and often take it as a curse instead of a gift. They often suffer from depression and fear and are clueless about whom to express this psychic phenomenon. Thus, it is a parent's duty to educate and enlighten them, as a child about this special and spiritual potential of psychic abilities..
